Meta Arts - Reality Intrudes, Mod Squad, Core Values, Nomads

In the article entitled "Something's Shakin in Antarctica", we note the following,

Most glaciers edge forward continuously, but the Whillans was already known to behave bizarrely: It sits still most of the time, then surges more than a half-meter forward twice per day as ocean tides lift and lower a slab of floating ice that extends from the end of the glacier onto the Ross Sea, just off the coast of Antarctica.

So the [oceans] are actually the control mechanism for the [ice sheet] which is behind the 'slab of floating ice' acting as a plug to the Whillans Ice Stream. The article does not draw the conclusion that if the floating ice were not there, then the Whillans Ice Stream could/would push out more than a half-meter with each tide, but being jutnobs, it seems fitting that we draw such a conclusion. The bouchon created by the floating ice is perhaps a cork/obstruction for the movement of the ice stream now, but if conditions change, then how much of the WAIS will move and how rapidly will it do so? This could be a reason that we are picking up the 'global coast event' language these many months. Being the smaller of the ice sheets on Antarctica, the WAIS could move sufficiently to cause such an impact on the oceans as to create our global coastal event. Calculating the necessary force estimated to be required, and guessing as to amounts of material within the WAIS mass, it would seem as though a mere 30/thirty miles of movement of the ice sheet would be required to create a 'global coastal event', albeit at a barely measurable 5/five inches impacts. While this 5/five inches is enough to play havoc with assumed normal tidal ranges, it would not reach even the mild level of emotional [distress] indicated by modelspace around the concept. True, a small 'global coastal event' could be surmised to create huge levels of discussions about the whole context and thus could precipitate the sort of language shifts we are discovering without causing the actual isolation and dislocation described in the linguistic processing. However, in order to reach the levels of emotional turmoil indicated, we would have to have the planetary press, including MainStreamMedia going on and on about the 'potential catastrophe' for weeks while describing probable outcomes with some detail. This could happen. But probably not. So to have the linguistics sets fulfilled by a 'global coastal event' we are more likely to see something like a smallish shift in the WAIS mass into the oceans such that at least a few dozen major shipping ports globally go underwater {ed note: although this could be only temporary, say a high tide phenomena} in order that the described amounts of isolation and disruption occur such that they can be discussed at the levels our data sets seem to indicate will take place. And we note that if the whole of the WAIS structure were to shift, that ocean levels would/could rise by 5/five meters (16.4 /sixteen point four feet). An additional 16/sixteen feet at high tide puts thousands of ports underwater. Also we note that such ocean flooding while it would have a global impact, would not be equally visited around the globe, and that those coasts within the boundaries of the tropics of Capricorn and Cancer would suffer far worse effects due to lunar influences and ocean heights variance.

We also note that much of the WAIS is grounded under water some to a depth of 1.5 (one point five) miles below ocean level. If conditions are likely to change rapidly anywhere, it is within these underwater 'anchored' ice masses. All they need do is to separate from their shelf, and they are very rapidly going to be floating. Such a movement would create its own form of 'global coastal event' in a 2/two phase form as first water rushed into place under the ice, causing it to lift, and then the second phase as the ice mass 'settled' down to floating and pushed out an appropriate mass of water outward. The effect would be of an ocean which initially rushed away from the coasts as Antarctica starts to float, and the inevitable wave back, this time augmented by the displacement amount of the ice now floating. And on a 'shaky' note, the Antarctic continent as a whole is 'depressed more than a half mile' due to the weight of the ice. In the presence of the increasing number of large earthquakes globally, it is worth considering the impact of large earthquakes on the geostability of the Antarctic as a region.

Or not. We could be wrong and frequently are.

But then again. Examining the 'real world' potential for an Antarctica participation in a 'global coastal event', we can but note that recent establishment scientific reports are painting a picture of change, and change at a more rapid pace than had been previously thought possible. So, a big hmmm. Aaaaaalllll together now..... HMMMMMM!

A pattern has emerged over this last year which is impacting of our work, though minorly so. In a sense this pattern is an outgrowth of [memeering] (note E ring), and is an attempt to censor certain forum postings though in-place moderators. Many of the more active forums/fora use 'volunteer' moderators to cap the flame wars, spam, and other non productive postings. We think that we are seeing a very subtle pattern of 'same style' editing/censoring by the moderators at very diverse forums/fora as though the moderators have all been trained at the same school. This may well prove to be the case. We have some small hints that a common master is directing the moderators efforts. There are certain emotional summations levels of words within certain contexts which are now being routinely removed from forum postings. While it is not too uncommon to have emotionally charged subjects break down into forum flame wars, and thus be 'banned' or 'deleted threads', we are now finding evidence that a new phase of 'history scrubbing' is underway in which old threads, some without new postings in months, are being removed. Further, other threads that contain links to the now-deleted threads are also being removed. Reminds us of the activities of the 'information dept' in the novel 1984. The activity is interesting in that such forums/fora are being manipulated to hide 'something', yet for those of us who have a far look at internet activity, this censorship wave is like holding signs 'something important used to be here'. The whole idea of the effort is to hide this 'something', yet the manner in which it is being done is very much as though attempting to hide what you consider 'valuable' by building a camouflage tent over it, but first 'illuminating' the area of tent construction with large masses of sputtering road flares.

The area of our data sets going to the [death of religions] context does have some support in manifesting reality. There are 2/two required components for any religion to be more than a 'local phenomena'. These are monetary control and ability to travel. Both of these supporting pillars for the religious control structures are under assault by cyclic forces such as the collapsing dollar, the loss of a global reserve currency, the peak oil issues, the degradation of the biosphere, and failing food supplies. Many witty philosophers in the past have noted that both politics and religion only come into existence after the real human needs of food, water, shelter, and energy are met. Without a warm skin and a full belly and a dry bed/nest, humans find that religion and politics are a potentially fatal distraction. This concept is at the core of the developing 'split' of humans, at least within the larger 'industrial/corporate' world. Again an expression of duality, this meme of separation from the larger social mass due to concerns for personal/familial safety in an increasingly unstable world/solar system is a base for a number of more diverse and visible impacts such as the 'death of religion'. As some of the more aware human population begins to concentrate its energies to much more immediate and local concerns such as 'food supplies' and 'catastrophic weather', the amount of energy and time that can be diverted to either politics or religion falls dramatically. We expect this trend to accelerate and broaden, especially as many of the diaspora affected populace comes to discover that the act of relocation is a permanent part of theirs, and their children's' lives.

The diaspora meme has to be considered from a new perspective in that many of the current, and soon-to-be displaced persons will be relocating into areas which will then also become unstable, and thus the 'diaspora' or relocation becomes the permanent component of these peoples lives, not their current location. So fleeing from flooding may place people at risk from traumatic wind effects, which then pushes them into areas where radically fluctuating temperatures create other problems such as dwindling food supplies, predation, parasitism, disease outbreaks, or failing water sources. This in turn pushes for more relocations, and a cycle begins.

Markets - Bushwhacked, Equalite'

The data sets continue to accrue primary supporting aspect/attribute sets for Fall and through Winter 2008/2009, and slightly beyond the vernal equinox into April of 2009 for [upset], and [agitation]. In spite of the [hype] and [propaganda] of late Summer (here in the USofA) which provides an [officially buoyant] mood and outlook to the Markets, and in spite of the [emotional uplift] provided to the [populace/USofA] by the pending [firing of the republican flavor of officialdom/establishment], the data sets are continuing to emphasize through accretion patterns that a series of events will combine over October, and through to late November to create an [emotional burden] on the [populace/USofA]. The [emotional burden] is of [national stress], and relates to [global security] and [conflict/confrontation]. This [emotional burden] participates in the [sudden] and [deep loss of money] described in earlier sections of this series. Now we have specific language rising as aspect/attribute sets which are headed by [financial contraction], and which are supported at the primary level by aspect/attribute sets for [unprecedented (scope)], and [staggering/reeling] and [cognitive denial (due to) size (of) events/occupancies]. The [loss of money] which the [populace/usofa] is going to experience will be labeled the [largest financial contraction of all time] in the [official press], and this will barely reach the actual level of emotional outbursts which are triggered by the event series that begin on October 7th and continue through November.

The [bush bust] will be still underway in its initial downturn phase well into February of 2009, and thereafter will have a lingering impact on all of the [usofa economy] through very late 2010. Though there are linguistics supporting the idea of [increased energy], and [optimism] appearing in modelspace in late February 2009, these are but the initial energetic emotions required as people [rise to the challenge], and [begin the real work]. These are not emotions of a 'recovery' or anything close to that, but rather the [optimism] which comes at the [beginning of the long journey].

Some of the [new optimism] for the [populace/usofa] is also shared by the [global populace] as the Bushies are 'retired'. There after a portion of this [optimistic energy] will be going into [new forms/types] of [electrical works] at a global level. This [electrical renewal effort] is focused at several levels including [last mile] and [basic infrastructure] and some is focused at the other end of the spectrum into [energy potentials/creation/capture/translation]. In both cases the [electrical renewal wave/initiative] will provide for the [creation] and [support] of [local manufacturing] globally. Here in the USofA this [return/rediscovery] of the [manufacturing/creations] in country will begin in early March 2009, and continue to grow through all of 2010, and well into 2011. This will be the largest [socially driven] effort at [infrastructure creation/renewal] since the original [electrification] projects of the 1930's.

Though set against a background of [undoing] of 35/thirty-five years of [bush/clinton] rule, and especially against the [residual waves] of the various [bush disasters], the [new electrics] will be providing a very exciting time for those 'in the business' as well as providing a global [spark (pun intended) of hope] against the [brutal/ugly legacy] of the [bushies] and the continuing [biospheric degradation]. In examining the longer term data sets, the impression arises that the [global electrification effort] will be a [supporting column/pier] in both the [transformation] and [rebellion] memes which will dominate the next [decade]. The [rebellion] meme is clearly supported by the [new electrics], though there will be a couple of looong years as the [control structures (of the) anglo alliance] come unraveled under their [own weight]. It will be during the first half of this [decade of electrical energy] that the data sets indicate the emergence of the [global court] which is given [authority] to [prosecute] the [monarchies/aristocracy]. This area is shown as having a huge impact on [planetary wealth] as the [aristocrats] and the whole idea of [aristocracy] is being [purged] from the [social order]. This is indicated to begin first at the level of [symbology], and then proceed onto [material wealth]. In both cases a [designed effort] is beginning (or has begun) in 2008 which will eventually produce a [take back our birthrights as humans] movement which we can very loosely describe as the [equalite'] wave. This [social movement] is indicated to proceed to ultimately [seize] all the [assets] of the various [monarchies] around the planet once the [symbol] of [stolen wealth], and [slavers] takes hold in the collective consensus.

GlobalPop - (Logo) Jack Boots, Boats?, Vibes, Tribes, Go(o)d Biz

Coming on the heels of the [local wars], and [fierce battles] of [summer] as the [revolution] meta data layer rises to primary influence over the [political life] of the planetary populace, this Fall is projected by the GlobalPop entity to be the [opening] of a [season] of [revolt/insurrection] which will last at least through November of 2009. These [revolts] will be primarily focused on [populace] versus [officialdom], though there are indications that the [fuzzy revolution] is taking hold and as we cross the July of 2009 period, the [revolutions] will start shifting toward a [slaves] versus [slavers] symbology as the [global corporations] are brought in to the [revolution] as their [control structures] are [attacked] both [politically/legally], and [extra/beyond legally]. While the [fighting] and [battles] of the global heads of state over 2008 will be thought to be a [tough/hard/difficult time] as [economic collapse] and [currency struggles] are met as challenges, the real battles are shown in the longer term data sets to begin in November 2009.

As an outgrowth of the [initiatives] which are shown to be [flowing] as [subtle currents] (pun noted) in the [new electrics global wave], the [corporation wars] starting in 2009 will result over the course of the next decade in a completely [restructured human social order] on the planet. This [recalibration] of the [social order] will have its roots in the [next French revolution] which is indicated to be a [primary trigger] to events in November 2009. Over the next year, watch for the return of 'symbols' from the previous [revolutionary period] of France, including some [strange adaptations] of the [hats] of the previous [revolutionary wave].

Within the GlobalPop entity the [wave] meme is a rising-to-dominance aspect/attribute set across the entity. The [wave] aspect/attribute set is dominant as a sub set within those areas of the entity where [revolution] meta data layer is dominant. The [wave] set is also dominant across the GlobalPop to Terra entity cross links. Within the totality of these cross links the largest number of primary supporting aspect/attribute sets are from the [violence] context set. This is to say that the cross links from GlobalPop to Terra entity can be interpreted as [waves (of) violent (kinds of weather/climate)]. So we have [waves (of) violent rains] showing as a dominant theme across much of [central] and [eastern] Europe for 2009. We also have [waves of violent flooding] showing up as a result of the [violent rains]. Further large areas of [western central asia] will also be on the receiving end of [waves of violent rains/flooding]. Further there are sub sets for [waves of violent snowstorms] which will be afflicting parts of [north pacific coastal regions of asia] as well as [central asian desert regions], and [siberia]. Within the [violent snowstorms] each of the sub sets is also dominated by [violent] as in [violent winds], and [violent hail]. Soooo....it looks like the [global climate patterns] of 2009 will be labeled as [violent] in general speech about the [climate] over the course of this next year.

A particular sort of [violent impact] is indicated to come from the now-becoming-ubiquitous language of [flooding] as a global phenomena in 2009. Both the [wave] language and the [violent] modifier are repeatedly present on both sides of the cross link, which is to say both within the Terra entity description of the [flooding], as well as within the GlobalPop entity description of the [impacts/emotional burden] of the [flooding]. In both cases the [violent flows (of) floodwaters/mud/mudslides] are indicated to be [open] and [without hindrance (due to the) size (of the) flowing material]. Stated another way, the [flows of rainwater/tidal water are so large as to overtop/overcome obstacles, and reach far in emotional burden on humans].

Tracking along with the [wave] of various [floodings], the data also provides that as 2009 progresses, the dominant [flooding] meme will gradually be replaced by [earth movement] of the [magma/volcano] type. The accretion patterns would seem to suggest that as 2009 ends, the [volcanoes] will begin to be the dominating climate/weather/earth_state factor the way that [traumatic winds] were for this year (2008), and the way that [flooding] will be for 2009. Hmmm. Probably not a good sign, and given the level of pattern activity, it would seem that [metal helmets] are going to be the 'dress du jour' for the year 2010.

As the GlobalPop entity progresses along with modelspace into 2009, and to just past the vernal (spring) equinox, the entity as a new set of aspect/attributes appear under both the [secrets revealed] and [duality] meta data layers. This new set is headed by [3/three] and is supported by [lies/ruses/deceptions]. The data set further contains supporting detail aspect/attribute sets for [catching/exposing], and [hunting/discovery], and [illness (of the) body]. The set for the [illness of the body] is supported in turn by references for [belly/stomach] and [heart] and [head]. The details sets further contain aspects for [reward] which is supported by [exposure] and [effective action]. There are deeper supporting details which influence the interpretation and point it in the direction of a [whistle blower/reformer] who will [present] the [evidence] of [misdeeds] and [lies] from the [governments/officialdom] and will in turn be [praised] and [rewarded] for the [discovery] and subsequent [exposure] of the [lies]. The [reward] sub set indicates that this [reformer] will be [viewed favorably] across the planet due to having [presented] not only the [lies], but also the [justified actions] that can be [taken] at a personal level to [obtain effective relief/actions] relative to the [lies/ruses/deceptions] and the [illness of the body].

The GlobalPop entity also contains large data sets which accrue for 2009 and beyond and which go to the idea of [personal life rearrangement/realignment]. Much of the supporting aspect/attribute sets within this group seem to be implying the manifestation of a [global spiritual experience] which comes over the [populace] of the [planet]. There are some data sets which could be interpreted to suggest that the ["experience"] occurs over the course of [6/six days]. The supporting sets speak to the issue of [experience] and [degrees of perception] such that there appears to be a [schism] which forms in [planet earth humanity] between those to have [accepted/integrated/internalized] the ["experience"] and those who are either [oblivious] or [in denial]. This causes humans to [review] and [appraise] their [personal allegiance] and [relationships]. The resulting [change of being] for those who [embrace] the ["experience"] will mean that many will [leave/remove family, and previous acquaintances] as their focus turns to [congenial fellow travelers/experiencers]. This [life direction/method] shift is shown with very long term impacts which go beyond the limit of the range, or over 20/twenty years. This sub set of the ["experience"] and the subsequent [life direction changes] are participating in the [self organizing collective] meme which has been so prevalent these last several years in the ALTA reports. This area is also providing a huge boost to the [global death of religion] meme, as well as the [revolution] meta data layer. Further the [life direction impact (and) changes] sub set participates as a major supporting sub set to the [transformation] meta data layer which is the theme for all of 2009. This area of the GlobalPop includes the smaller sub set of the Populace/USofA entity. This area of GlobalPop is extensively cross linked to the [unknown energies from space] sub set of the SpaceGoatFarts entity. Within the SpaceGoatFarts entity termination and origination cross links, a preponderance of references go to [Sagittarius], and specifically to the [arrow] of the [constellation]. These areas with the SpaceGoatFarts entity are also participating within the [revolution/rebellion] meta data layer. The terminating cross links in SpaceGoatFarts entity also include [mental powers/conditioning /keenness].

The GlobalPop entity has extensive cross links over to the Populace/USofA entity which terminate in the [nasa] sub set. These originate in the [wave] dominant aspect/attribute set of GlobalPop where they find support from aspects indicating that a [wave (of) fresh winds] will [blow away] the [diffusion/dispersion/dissipation/deceptions] of the [past]. The results are described as [clean stone], or [fresh brown stone], or [clean dark hardness]. These aspect sets are in their turn sharing a common supporting layer which is participating in the [contact] meme, and the [revolution] meta data layer. The idea coming across is that a [wave of social change] will be [overwhelming] the [past lies (by) officialdom/NASA] and will reveal specific [heartening information/good words] about both [ancient humans] and [omnihumanity] and our [real history]. This in its turn is supporting the [contact] meme as well as the [expansion/advancing (of) human potential] sub set. The [human potential] sub set is a curious grouping which includes the contexts of [siddhis] and [higher mental powers]. This [dispersion of past lies] sub set grows across all of 2009 with a very pronounced jump in accretion of values beginning in mid Summer, 2009 which continues to grow at that pace well into 2010.

There are also large sub sets forming within GlobalPop which are going to the [power problems] of 2008/2009. These will be the [driving force], pun noted, of the [new electrics movement] globally. The aspect/attribute sets for [power problems] also are directly held under the [political] context sub set where they are going to the idea of [national political systems] which are shown as [crashing] in on [themselves], or [imploding] under their [own weight of ineffectual actions]. The data sets seem to be describing a group of [dictatorships] and [near/soft dictatorships] which include the [usofa empire] and the supporting data indicates that [so much/too much change] comes to the [populace(s)] involved, and they no longer will [tolerate] or [can afford to support] the [power structures] which are [ruling their lives]. This results not in [revolution through violence] {ed note: though that meme is concurrent and active}, but rather in [withdrawal (of) attention], or [removing of focus] such that the [personal energies] of the [populace] are [elsewhere directed] than toward [official political power structures] and these then [wither (as though on a) vine (whose) roots (are) severed].

The [wave] as a driving context within GlobalPop, and in this instance the sub set entity of Populace/USofA, continues to appear at differing levels within the entities as modelspace is progressed forward from Winter 2008/2009, and into 2009 proper. As the GlobalPop entity passes the Winter Solstice point in December 2008, a group of these [wave] dominated sub sets begin to accrue for the context of [religious organizations]. Within the Populace/USofA sub set of GlobalPop entity, the [religious organizations] include the [evangelicals], and the [fundamentalists], but also such other organized religions such as [scientology], and many of the smaller [new age] sub sets. Within GlobalPop, the [vatican], as well as the whole of the [global christian organization], and the [hebrew/judaic structures] are the more visible contexts within the [wave] group of accreting data sets. There are some [moslem] contexts also represented, though these are not at the level of accretion as the other religious organizations, and so we are making the assumption that it is the [control structures] which are the primary differentiating elements, not the type of religion per se. This seems to fit as there are other [death of religion] sub sets in which the [islamic/moslem] sub set is very heavily represented, however in this [wave] sub set the emphasis is more toward the [organizations/corporations /control structures] and the [islamic] sub sets are less represented. Without regard to the nature of the [religion], the data sets are suggesting that the [human control of other humans] nature of the [organization] will be [severely impacted/alterd through stress and violence] over the [winter] of 2008/2009, and thereafter in an increasing level of intensity through the rest of 2009.

The [wave] sub set suggests that the beginning of the [debacle] and [degrading] of the already [beset religions prestige] will come as the result of a [statement] which will be made by a [prominent religious leader] while [obviously drunk/inebriated]. This will apparently come about due to a confluence of circumstances in which the [religious leader] is [caught out/discovered] to be [staggering drunk] as a [sudden event] occurs. There is to be a 'coincidental' proximate of [reporters/video] just as the manifesting circumstances [demand reaction/speech] about the [event], and they [capture the rash and foolish saying/words/statements]. These then go 'viral' and the 'process' of [mental liberation] is begun, or from the view point of the [religious organizations], the [damage is done].

There are associations of [mountain retreat] with the [drunken religious leader incident], and these will be prominently featured, and much discussed in the [populace response] to the [visibility] going viral. The indications are that [lavish accommodations/setting], and [sumptuous foods] contribute to the [off-putting/offensive] nature of the [mal props/bad words] coming from the [staggering drunk] at this [crucial time]. Further associations are found in the aspect/attribute detail level and include [a bar/liquor site] replete with [sexual regalia] and [illegal/banned/denied substances]. The [bad words from drunken religious leader] linguistic set is also supported by [breaking life/killing], and [turtles/aquatic sea life], and [backlash], though we note that the [sea life] sub set is minor in comparison to the primary support which comes from [bad man returning]. This last can also be interpreted as [the return/reappearance of bad influence/bad situation/bad actions]. Further the [return] aspect/attribute set contains support for [half hidden moon], and [breaking back], and [rash actions]. Apparently a situation will arise in which it seems necessary to elicit the reaction/orders of a religious leader following the [return] of this [bad man/state/condition], and the [reporters/video] will be [present] just in time to [catch/view] the [drunken staggers and bad words] coming out of the [mouth of piety]. The resulting video is indicated to be the 'mother of all virals' and to continue to circulate at such levels as to cause huge problems for [religion] in general. There will be a number of interesting side effects including the [promotion] of the [reporter/videographer] to a very serious level within the social order, far beyond their wildest expectations, and also the [resignation] of a growing number of [functionaries] within this particular religious organization, and then rippling out into the wider world of [controlling religions]. This area also participates very heavily in the [revolution] meta data layer, and further is a very rapidly growing sub set for all of 2009. This area also has very extensive internal cross links over to [political] sub sets, many of which are supported at the primary level by [chaos]. The other supporting levels include aspect/attribute sets headed by [overstep], [missed step], [falling], [yielding], [dangerous]. This last aspect of [dangerous] is itself supported by [tense], and at lower levels by [forced suicide], and [killing self], and [strange things/alien things]. Further support for the [return/appearance of bad man/actions] includes [tensions], [rumblings], [ignoring (popular) hunger/drives], and [defensive positions]. The [inferior religious leader(s)] whom are [caught out drunk] are also described in these lower level supporting sets as being shown to be [greedy] and [unscrupulous] and then in turn attempt to [divert] attentions by [pointing fingers at colleagues]. As may be expected, this area is indicating that the [religion business/industry] will also be joining the [global corporatism] in a [very long term slump]. Hmm. Ought to be really entertaining.

Along with the [death of religions] meme, and its particular supporting sets, the data accretion patterns are now pointing at 2009 and beyond as a time of [increasing contact (with) the supernatural/spiritual]. This area is also under the [wave] sub set, and has a high, and increasing summation for [visibility] as 2009 progresses. The data sets are describing a situation in which the [spiritual experience] will no longer be [dampened] and [controlled/smothered] by [religious organizations]. The patterns of the accrual over 2009 appear to be coming in 3/three [waves] with each larger than the last. These are NOT [waves] of [religious revival], though there will be some visibility of that also, rather these are [waves] of [public discussions] about an [increasing number of personal contacts with spiritual energies]. This area is hugely diverse in its supporting sub sets, and only cohesive in that the patterns are suggesting [waves] which will carry along the populace of the planet as though billions of corks bobbing in the oceans. Not all of the populace are described as being [receptive] to these [supernatural energies], but all are shown to be affected, one way or another.

Terra - Nova Terra, Polemics

The Terra entity has data sets appearing which suggest that late in 2008, and early in 2009, a series of [earthquakes] will be [revealing new lands], at least in [outline] form. These [new lands] or [rising land masses] will not be manifesting until later in 2010 according to the longer range value sets, but will be [presayed/forecast] by the [earthquake patterns] of 2008/2009. Apparently some of the [new land] will be the result of [outbreaks/break_opens] of [magma pockets] which are described as being [under oceans]. Other components of the [new lands] meme come from sub sets indicating that [land rises (due to) uplifting earthquakes] such that [new coastal areas/plains] are [drained] or alternatively [above high tide]. The appearance of the [new lands] is not particularly a good thing for the rest of the continents as the data suggests that [existing coast lands] and [many islands] are affected by the [rising oceans].

There are large data sets under the [new lands] area which are focused on the [antarctic region] as well as the [90/ninety east] longitude in the southern latitudes down to the [south pole]. These areas are also being filled with aspect/attributes for [history (of) human settlement] which will come out of the [rising lands] problems. This [history] will apparently be [disclosed/revealed] in [antarctica] and this will be due to [catastrophic] occupancies in the far [southern oceans].

In 2007 the data provided a hint that [winds] were to be our 'theme' of the year 2008 as our global weather base. These [winds] were described as [traumatic], and in several parts of the northern hemisphere this has certainly been the case. The [traumatic winds] are a continuing fact of life here in the continental USofA as tornadoes continue to [gouge out] the countryside. In 2009, the pattern is apparently to [diagonally reverse]. This is to say that the indications are for a new 'climate theme' to emerge in 2009 in which the [winds] go to the southern hemisphere, and [flooding] and [volcanoes] afflict the northern hemisphere. We note that in both hemispheres, the [duality] meta data layer will be ever present, and will be expressing at several different layers of human-to-planet/universe interaction. Within the data sets in Terra entity relating to the [floods] theme for 2009, there are cross links to the populace entities with indications that the [fascistic tendencies] of [officialdom] will be [erupting] into the [open] along with the [flooding] and other [climate disasters] as the [governments] and ThePowersThatBe respond to the [climate/biosphere threats] by [attempting to impose (their idea) of order]. The [diagonal reversal] of the [climate patterns] are indicated to [freak out] or [rush blood to the skull] *(as though about to faint) of ThePowersThatBe, and they are shown responding by [increasing efforts to enslave/control] the [situation]. And since they have no power to control the [climate] or really much else in [universe], their response is to [fall upon] the [populace]. It will not be a good move nor response to the manifesting circumstances. This area is participating in the [transformation] meta data layer.

When we examine the data within both the Terra entity and the GlobalPop entity, and IN SPITE of our attempting to find other explanations, we are forced to acknowledge that our modelspace includes [pole shift] of the [crustal movement] kind within its longer term data sets. While the granularity of the detail sets are marginally trustworthy out 18/eighteen months, the range extends out several decades. The next clear division within the longer term data sets is in the area of about 3/three years out. IN OUR PAST interpretations, the 3/three years out data set reliability HAS BEEN VERY LOW, at least in important details.

Currently the [pole shift] language is within that 3/three year range, HOWEVER, please note that this may be only indicating that 3/three years from now there is serious discussion of a terra based, crustal pole shift, and NOT the actual shift itself. It could even be a bleed through of a hugely successful film on the subject. We are frequently confounded by language changes as they are only indicating what humans will be discussing, not the 'why' of the origin of the discussion. The [pole shift] sub set is supported by [crustal movement], [terra reverberating], [very loud noise], [explosions of thunder], [fluid] and [pulsating] as modifiers to [earth motion], and other nasty descriptors for what will NOT be a fun week if it occurs. There are repeated references to [torrents], and [lightning storms] of such intensity that the [ground/earth is scarred]. Further there are sets going to [jaws of rocks], and [obstructions rising], as well as [rigidity cracks], and [shattering splinters (of rocks) remove infrastructure].

These [pole/crustal shift] sets are further supported by complex structures indicating that [ominous rumbling warnings are heard but ignored], and that [regrets] and [crying] will be in abundance [after the effect/change], and that further, the [aftermath] will be filled with [tsunami's] both in the [ocean] and the [air/atmosphere]. This last is a descriptor set going to the idea of [amazons/titanic rivers of rainwater crashing into mountains and condensing out of the atmosphere with catastrophic results]. There are further sets within the GlobalPop entity which go to [humans] having to [gnaw on dried foods/meats/fishes] after the [changes] as the [universe] is [too unsettled] to [produce crops].

The 'good news', if it can be so characterized, is that the [torrential/earth_scrubbing rains] in the months following the [crustal shift] will be beneficial in [resetting the seasons], and [refreshing the atmosphere] as well as [recharging/invigorating the oceans]. Probably a pretty good thing....for such life as survives the [terra ride].

Conclusion: ALTA Series 209 - Part Six - Last report in the series: - Waiting, Pondering Poles, Probably Wrong

Along with the [flood] meme for 2009, a primary support for the 'mood of the populace' contexts is [waiting]. The data suggests that [once flooded (out)] or [during the flooding] the majority of the [afflicted humans] will be forced to [learn to wait]. There will be [waiting for the waters], and [waiting for the storm (to pass)], and [waiting for the rivers/flood to crest], and [waiting for the waters to recede]. There are indications of [waiting for help/rescue/surcease], as well as [waiting (for opportunity) for action/escape]. So probably it would be constructive to 'learn to cultivate patience', as well as to be aware that many humans do not know how to wait, and thus could be problems to those around them.

The language around the [crustal shift/pole shift] within the Terra entity naturally raises many questions. Right at the top is reliability. Does this language showing up in our data mean that a [planetary crustal shift] will happen in 3/three years? Short answer is NO. The appearance of the data has a much higher probability of indicating that the global mediastream will be filled with discussions about a pole shift in about 3/three years time. This discussion could be focused on earth, but need not be. IF, as an example, the lying bastards at NASA were to discover a crustal shift underway on Mars, and then let the rest of us know about it, such could/would trigger just the kind of language that we have discovered in this latest processing. Or as noted, a really successful scary movie might also bring out such language in the global mediastream. Or even if the language is referencing an impending crustal shift here on terra, there is certainly NO indication that the shift itself would take place 3/three years from now. What we have is language indicating that there will be a global mediastream discussion of the subject in 3/three years time. A good argument can be made that our picking up this language actually points out that such an event WILL NOT take place. Why? Well, imagine the effects on the human and other life populations should a crustal event take place. Such an event would/will likely kill off over 99/ninety-nine percent of the populace as well as to totally destroy the whole of the human planetary infrastructure. Plus the continents would likely be rearranged. It would be the equivalent of a 100/one-hundred on the Richter scale of earthquakes relative to the amount of energy released, and yes we note that the Richter scale does not even reach 13/thirteen. Soooo....the idea comes across that if we are picking up discussions of such an event in 3/three years, at least we can be assured that 3/three years out, there are likely to be enough humans around-and-about to have such discussions, and therefore the crustal event probably has not taken place.

Further we can postulate that IF a [global coastal event] of some serious magnitude does occur in 2009 (or early 2010), then it would be predictable that the global mediastream would be discussing the potential for larger events up to the level of a crustal shift. And it may take a year or so after a global coastal event for the scale of the problem to filter into the planetary discourse. Make sense?

We also have some evidence in the meta data layers, especially the [revolution], and [secrets revealed] layers which can be projected out to that time, and would cause just such a [crustal discussion]. Postulate that a more-or-less global convergence of governments and other officialdom/TPTB exists. Then when revolution comes to a particular area, and mobs take over the local 'outlets' of TPTB/officialdom, and secrets about the local do'ins come out, they in turn cause other secrets to be revealed in other areas. Soooo...when the 'chemtrails' secrets come out in late 2009 and into 2010, and the populace begins to learn just what TPTB are up to in the skies, we could connect the dots and predict that such an occurrence might well lead into a global discussion of the potential for a crustal shift in the near term. Of course, we can't predict what the 'near term' might be in relation to the fear levels of TPTB, but there is a highly publicized year number out there, but of course the media has been so rabid about promoting a doom focus on 2012, that it may just be 'yet another point of mental control' being planted for and by ThePowersThatBe.

However, if a global coastal event of magnitude does occur in either 2009 or 2010, then probabilities and energetic potentials will be demonstrating a convincing argument for further probable planetary problems which just might include the ultimate in 'walkabouts'. But at this point, it still could be just talk. You know how humans are.

Language is tricky stuff, especially when the 'woo-woo' psychic elements are out in the open. That is our story and we are sticking to it.

Still working on the boat. Never can tell when a little water transportation could come in handy.
